Weekly Note from Mrs See...

Review of Remote Learning RESULTS - Thank you very much to everyone who filled in our survey about Remote Learning. We had really pleasing feedback and are delighted that generally what we are offering is working well. We are already looking into addressing any comments or suggestions that people have made, ready for next half term. As far we know, we will be delivering at least two weeks of further remote learning after half term. The next government announcement, due on the 22nd February, will be the next point at which we will all find out more information. So we'll all have our fingers-crossed for positive news!

Virtual Family Quiz and Games Night - TONIGHT we will be hosting our quiz at 6pm, we hope you can join us. Zoom links and answer sheets have been sent out via email already.

School closes today for everybody apart from teachers who have a training day tomorrow.

Zoom links & Answer Sheet will be sent via email the day before.

I want to say a HUGE thank you to all of you for your support helping your children with everything this term. It is certainly not an easy challenge to juggle everything and try to replicate school in your own homes, but we have been so impressed with the engagement and achievements of everyone. Well done!

A massive thank you also to the team here! It has been no easy feat taking on this new way of working, and balancing that with still running a full pre-school and supporting the children of critical workers in school - all at the same time. Our staff have been fantastic!

I hope you all enjoy a well earned, peaceful and relaxing week over half term and we look forward to 'seeing' you back on Monday 22nd February.

Take care, Mrs See
